This privacy policy (the “Policy”) describes how Harbor Capital Advisors, Inc., Harbor Services Group, Inc., Harbor Funds Distributors, Inc., Harbor Trust Company, Inc., Harbor Funds, and Harbor ETF Trust (collectively, “Harbor” “we” or “us”) collects, uses, and discloses personal information, including information collected through our website located at harborcapital.com (the “Site”).

Please note that this Policy does not apply to all personal information that Harbor collects, including any personal information that is subject to our Privacy Notice for Investors or our Privacy Notice for Employees. If you are a California resident to whom this policy applies, please review the California Addendum that can be found at the end of this Policy.

This Privacy Policy was updated as of September 2021, and as described below, may be updated from time to time.

Personal Information We Collect

We may collect information directly from you, your representative or other organizations, either on paper or online, including automatically as you interact with the Site, and from third parties who are acting on our behalf.

Information Collected Directly From You

We may collect personal information directly from you when you submit a request through the Site, send us a message through the Site, or otherwise attempt to contact us through the Site. When you create an account on the Site, you may submit certain identifiers to us such as your name, address, email address, telephone/fax numbers, account number, social security or taxpayer identification number, bank account information, username, and password.

Information Automatically Collected

We automatically collect certain Internet or other electronic network activity information to help us understand your usage of the Site, including through cookies or similar technologies (described below). For example, each time you visit the Site, we may automatically collect technical and navigational information, such as browser type, device type, device ID, Internet Protocol (“IP”) address, pages visited, average time spent on our Site, searches performed on our Site, and information about your interactions with our advertisements. Please see the “Cookies and Similar Technologies” section of this Policy below.

Cookies and Similar Technologies

A cookie is a small text file that is stored on your device when you visit a website or a mobile application. Cookies usually store small bits of information about you and what you do on that site or application, which are then used to improve your browsing experience. Some cookies are only used during a single visit, while others are saved on your device until your next visit.

The Site may use both types of cookies to make your visits more productive and to improve the Site. Cookies allow us to keep track of your use of the Site, facilitate Site navigation, validate your identity, remember your password and preferences, and improve the quality and security of the Site.

We also use third-party companies to provide marketing services on our behalf, who may place cookies during your use of the Site. These cookies collect information about your use of the Site, including links that lead you to or from our Site, pages visited, and amount of time spent on the Site.

Generally, you can set your browser not to accept cookies or to notify you if you are sent a cookie, giving you the opportunity to choose whether or not to accept the cookie. Please note that your choices will be specific to the browser and device on which you decide not to accept cookies, and that not accepting cookies may interfere with certain features of the Site.

Web Beacons and Pixels

The Site may use a web beacon, sometimes known as a pixel tag or clear GIF, to collect usage data. A web beacon is a clear graphic image (typically one pixel in size) delivered through a web browser or email. A web beacon helps to measure usage and activity and reports that activity back to the system providers. In some cases, a web beacon triggers the placement of a cookie on your device.

We and our service providers use web beacons and cookies to determine things like if and when you open our e-mails, what type of device, operating system, e-mail program, or web browser you are using, your IP address, and what links you click within our site or e-mail. These things enable us to gauge the effectiveness, relevance, and value of our content and communications.

We also use tracking pixels for remarketing and engagement purposes. This means that when you use our Site, you may see ads about Harbor on other sites you subsequently visit. We use third party service providers to collect information about who views and clicks these ads across the Internet in order to understand our customers better and optimize our services.

For more information on opting out of tracking pixels and other technologies generally, visit <https://optout.networkadvertising.org/?c=1>.

Do Not Track Disclosure

Our third-party vendors may collect information about users across our website. We do not currently have the capability to respond to a web browser that does not track signals or other mechanisms that provide you with the ability to exercise choice regarding the collection of this information.
